

Kate Huntington has a new husband and his private investigations agency has attracted their first celebrity client, a pop singer whose anonymous stalker has a twisted concept of love. Before Skip Canfield realizes just how twisted, he first involves his psychotherapist wife and then their lawyer friend, Rob Franklin, in the case. Soon they are being hounded by paparazzi and someone is planting evidence to convince Skip that Kate and Rob are lovers. Struggling to deal with this onslaught of unwanted attention, Kate and Skip must face the reality that you can't always protect those you love from harm.

Praise from readers for the Kate Huntington series:

What a pleasant surprise to find such a well written book from a new author. The characters came alive so much so that I felt I was right there with them...

Lamb's characters are wonderfully developed and engaging... In the guise of a fast-paced mystery, Lamb explores the complexities of male/female friendships and introduces us to some of the challenges of psychotherapy.

This is the second book in Kate's series that I have read. It is so well written that the characters seem like dear friends. Please keep the series coming!
